FY 2019 budget include:

- Additional noteworthy adjustments by the General Assembly to the Amended FY 2019 Budget
- The Southeastern Council of Foundations strives to support Members and grantmakers with access to education, resources, and professional development.

Georgians for Refuge, Action, Compassion and Education (GRACE) has made it favorably out of committee.

Two "Anti-Human Trafficking Protective Response Act" bills -- SB 106 and HB 234 -- have moved quickly and favorably out of the Senate Health and Human Services Committee, passing the Senate along party lines. If SB 106 passes the House, it would allow authorized psychologists within the interjurisdictional practice, in Georgia. HB 26 passed the House nearly unanimously and would allow psychologists to practice without a local law enforcement.

On March 5, 2019, the General Assembly gave its final approval to the Amended FY 2019 Budget. The proposed funding for school security grants was increased by $600,000, for a total of $1 million. The governor's initial proposal included $400,000 for security grants. The Senate approved $1 million, and the House approved $600,000. HB 234, introduced by Senate Public Safety Chairman John Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

A handful of bills attempting to address the state's health care provider shortages, the Interstate Compacts: Interstate Medical Licensure Compact Act" (HB 26) and the "Medical Practice Act of the State of Georgia" (SB 118) have shown promising movement. HB 26 would allow authorized psychologists within the interjurisdictional practice, in Georgia. HB 26 passed the House nearly unanimously and would allow psychologists to practice without a local law enforcement.

Since the last GGA Policy Update, the comprehensive dyslexia bill, SB 48, has undergone a few key revisions. SB 48, introduced by Sen. Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

Something

Last week, the General Assembly gave its final approval to the Amended FY 2019 Budget. The proposed funding for school security grants was increased by $600,000, for a total of $1 million. The governor's initial proposal included $400,000 for security grants. The Senate approved $1 million, and the House approved $600,000. HB 234, introduced by Senate Public Safety Chairman John Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

On March 5, 2019, the General Assembly gave its final approval to the Amended FY 2019 Budget. The proposed funding for school security grants was increased by $600,000, for a total of $1 million. The governor's initial proposal included $400,000 for security grants. The Senate approved $1 million, and the House approved $600,000. HB 234, introduced by Senate Public Safety Chairman John Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

A handful of bills attempting to address the state's health care provider shortages, the Interstate Compacts: Interstate Medical Licensure Compact Act" (HB 26) and the "Medical Practice Act of the State of Georgia" (SB 118) have shown promising movement. HB 26 would allow authorized psychologists within the interjurisdictional practice, in Georgia. HB 26 passed the House nearly unanimously and would allow psychologists to practice without a local law enforcement.

Since the last GGA Policy Update, the comprehensive dyslexia bill, SB 48, has undergone a few key revisions. SB 48, introduced by Sen. Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

Something

The proposed funding for school security grants was increased by $600,000, for a total of $1 million. The governor's initial proposal included $400,000 for security grants. The Senate approved $1 million, and the House approved $600,000. HB 234, introduced by Senate Public Safety Chairman John Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

A handful of bills attempting to address the state's health care provider shortages, the Interstate Compacts: Interstate Medical Licensure Compact Act" (HB 26) and the "Medical Practice Act of the State of Georgia" (SB 118) have shown promising movement. HB 26 would allow authorized psychologists within the interjurisdictional practice, in Georgia. HB 26 passed the House nearly unanimously and would allow psychologists to practice without a local law enforcement.

Since the last GGA Policy Update, the comprehensive dyslexia bill, SB 48, has undergone a few key revisions. SB 48, introduced by Sen. Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

Something

The proposed funding for school security grants was increased by $600,000, for a total of $1 million. The governor's initial proposal included $400,000 for security grants. The Senate approved $1 million, and the House approved $600,000. HB 234, introduced by Senate Public Safety Chairman John Albers (R-Roswell), builds upon the

A handful of bills attempting to address the state's health care provider shortages, the Interstate Compacts: Interstate Medical Licensure Compact Act" (HB 26) and the "Medical Practice Act of the State of Georgia" (SB 118) have shown promising movement. HB 26 would allow authorized psychologists within the interjurisdictional practice, in Georgia. HB 26 passed the House nearly unanimously and would allow psychologists to practice without a local law enforcement.