misbehavior. Cuts to these grants risk limiting courts' access to these therapies, possibly children at medium and high risk to reoffend and provide them certain evidence-based treatment per year to detain a juvenile, the programs are credited with saving taxpayers $125 juvenile justice reform and have proven very effective in reducing juvenile recidivism. JJIG Community Service Grant programs were born out of Governor Deal's extremely successful efforts to stay in compliance with federal benefits processing requirements, and ultimately welfare worker positions in the current fiscal year; and 127 vacant child welfare worker receive critical program benefits. These proposed reductions would eliminate 30 vacant child programs are processed accurately and on-time, so that children and families are able to food stamps, Medicaid, and Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) benefits most vulnerable children. Benefits eligibility workers ensure that applications to the state's Child welfare caseworkers investigate and address claims and manage cases for our state's most vulnerable children. Benefits eligibility workers ensure that applications to the state's agency with a statewide network that serves all of Georgia's 159 counties. The network links agency work to local communities in areas such as child welfare, early care and
